Clemency program for deserters, resisters

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford proclaimed a clemency program today for thousands of Vietnam war deserters and draft resisters "in furtherance of our national commitment to justice and mercy."

A key feature of the program would require deserters and draft evaders to spend up to 24 months in low-paying jobs judged to promote the "national health, safety or interest." There would be no minimum time period for "alternate service jobs" and reductions from the 24 months service period would be dependent on military service records and "other mitigating factors."

All those wanting to accept the amnesty opportunity would have to turn themselves in before Jan. 31. Draft evaders would report to the United States attorney where an offense was committed and deserters would report to appropriate military commanders.

Ford also set up a nine-member Presidential Clemency Board to handle the cases of those already convicted of draft evasion or absence from military service.

"The board has been instructed to give priority consideration to individuals currently confined," the White House press office said in a fact sheet. "The President also has asked that their confinement be suspended as soon as possible, pending the board's review."

Ford briefed Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress before making details of the clemency program public.

"It is not amnesty," House Republican Leader John Rhodes said after the briefing. "It sets forth a mechanism under which these young men can rehabilitate themselves..."

Senate Republican Whip Robert Griffin of Michigan said most participants in the briefing were pleased with the make-up of the clemency board.

However, both Rhodes and Griffin acknowledged that some congressional leaders at the meeting voiced opposition to Ford's action.

The President also provided for a new type of military discharge, a clemency discharge, that would go to military personnel who satisfactorily participated in the clemency plan.

In a proclamation and accompanying the executive order establishing the program, Ford did not specify the precise kinds of alternate service that would be required.

But the White House press office said there would be a ban on jobs "for which there are more numerous qualified applicants than jobs available." The press office also said pay would compare reasonably with that of men or women entering military service.

Young Americans who fled to other countries to avoid military service would be granted a 15-day grace period after re-entering the country before they would have to report appropriate authorities.

All participants in the program would have to acknowledge allegiance to the United States.

Those who shun the program or do not satisfactorily complete their part of the clemency offer would be subject to prosecution.

Ford, in explaining his move, said in the proclamation:

"In furtherance of our national commitment to justice and mercy these young Americans should have the chance to contribute a share to the rebuilding of peace among ourselves and with all nations. They should be allowed the opportunity to earn return to their country, their communities and their families, upon their agreement to a period of alternate service in the national interest, together with an acknowledgement of their allegiance to the country and its Constitution."

Ford described desertion in wartime as a "major, serious offense" and draft evasion as "a serious offense."

"Reconciliation among our people does not require that these acts be condoned," he added. "Yet, reconciliation calls for an act of mercy to bind the nation's wounds and to heal the scars of deviousness."

Officials said approximately 15,500 draft evaders are potentially eligible for clemency. Of these about 8,700 already have been convicted, an additional 4,350 are under indictment and 2,250 are under investigation.

Of those under indictment, 4,060 are listed as fugitives and an estimated 3,000 of them are in Canada.

Officials said 130 persons are presently serving prison sentences for draft evasion and presumably are eligible for release pending reviews of their cases by the clemency board.

The officials said some 500,000 incidents of desertion falling within the scope of the clemency program were recorded during the Vietnam war.

First woman chairman for GOP is approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican National Committee unanimously approved its first woman chairman today and heard President Ford declare the November election is a battle to elect "an inflation-proof Congress."

Ford and Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller addressed a luncheon after Mrs. Mary Louise Smith of Iowa, a veteran party organizer picked by Ford, was unanimously approved by the Republican National Committee for the party chairmanship.

Ford noted previous dire predictions of massive Republican losses this November and election of a "veto-proof Congress" but said that seemed less likely now.

"What we want to elect... is an inflation-proof Congress," he said, adding that he would back candidates pledged to hold down federal spending.

If enough of these can be elected, he said, "I think we will have defeated our public enemy No. 1, inflation."

Ford pledged that the 1976 campaign, in which he presumably will be the Republican presidential candidate, "will be in the hands of the Republican National Committee."

That drew applause from the national committee members, many of whom resented the way the former President Richard M. Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign was run through a separate Committee for the Re-election of the President.

The committee passed a series of resolutions commending Ford and Rockefeller and praising former President Richard M. Nixon "for his achievements" and for having had "the courage to make the decision he thought was best for America" by resigning last month.

The 59-year-old Mrs. Smith, who as party co-chairman for the past six months ran a series of GOP grassroots workshops, succeeds George Bush, named to head the U.S. liaison office in the People's Republic of China.

The election of Mrs. Smith was the major item of business at the committee meeting, which also included a luncheon with addresses by President Ford and Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller.

There was no public opposition to Mrs. Smith, though some RNC members were reported privately annoyed that, once again, their new chairman had been selected by a President without their playing any role besides ratification.

Two women released

French Embassy still held

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Japanese terrorists released two women hostages from the French Embassy early today, but continued to hold nine male hostages, including French Ambassador Jacques Senard.

"We are progressing, but I believe that we are not yet completely in the last hours," French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues said in Paris.

Dutch Premier Joop den Uyl said in a television interview "there are so many uncertain factors in this that I can't tell you concretely."

"I have a feeling that in the next 24 hours a series of very difficult decisions will have to be taken by us."

He said "a matter of special concern" was that the three terrorists and the hostages were getting tired and edgy.

The terrorists seized the embassy late Friday afternoon to gain the release of a Japanese Red Army colleague jailed in France. France flew him to Amsterdam airport that evening.

A police spokesman said the release of the two 22-year-old women was the result of negotiations between the three terrorists and the Dutch Justice Ministry.

He described the move as a significant step, but he refused to confirm or deny reports from diplomatic sources that a deal for the remaining hostages was imminent.

The two women, Bernadine Geerling, the embassy telephone operator, and Joyce Fleur, Ambassador Jacques Senard's secretary, were taken away in ambulances. They were reported in "favorable condition considering the circumstances." A police spokesman said the women reported the terrorists had not mistreated any of the hostages.

A government spokesman said the terrorists had asked for food and cigarettes. They were given cartons of tomato soup, cheese sandwiches and soft drinks.

One weak light gleamed from behind a blind on the top floor, and a heavy mist swirled around the building from time to time. One French source said it was hoped the mist would not interfere with flying, a remark that was taken to indicate likelihood of an agreement soon to free the hostages and fly the terrorists to another country.

A news blackout ordered by the Dutch government made it impossible to confirm or deny the reports, which said the terrorists were to be provided a French jetliner with a crew of Dutch volunteers to fly them and Yutaka Furuya, another Japanese arrested in France seven weeks ago, anywhere except Paris.

Curtis, Bothwell Lodge Bond topics

Gov. Christopher (Kit) Bond will be in Sedalia Thursday to boost the candidacy of Thomas B. Curtis, Republican candidate for Senator, and also to announce plans for state-owned Bothwell Lodge.

Bond is scheduled to speak at a $30-a-plate luncheon for Curtis at noon Thursday at the Ramada Inn, and will also participate in a press conference at 1:45 p.m. at Monsees Realty, 1609 South Limit.

The governor is expected to reveal state plans for utilizing Bothwell Lodge, which it took over last summer. Bond has issued an executive order turning the lodge over to the Division of Parks and Recreation of the Department of Natural Resources, and a spokesman for that office said Monday that the governor had been given some "conceptual ideas" for use of the property. Bond will also tour the lodge.

Hosing down a problem

Fire gutted a 1970 Volkswagen about 11:20 Monday morning at 1807 South Quincy. Glen O'Neal, Warrensburg, said he had just parked the car and went into the home of an insurance client when a neighbor came and told him his car was on fire. Fire officials attributed the blaze to a short in the car's wiring and estimated damage at $1,200. After the fire was out, firemen discovered the car's gasoline tank was leaking and had to wash down the gas.

Police matters may be pre-session topic

The possibility that city councilmen may devote part of their pre-session meeting tonight to police matters was suggested Monday by Councilman Allen Hawkins, chairman of the police, gas, lights and parking committee.

Further council discussion of a report on the police department, Hawkins said, "was a possibility because there is pending action." He declined to indicate what that action would be.

At a special two-hour closed meeting Thursday night, the council heard a report on the five-month police investigation by City Attorney Robert Liston and special counsel William F. Brown. Liston indicated he would not appear at tonight's meeting.

In another police-related matter, Mayor Jerry Jones indicated that the council "will definitely decide tonight" whether to refile resisting arrest charges against Bob Hopkins, 41, Liberal, Mo.

This action will occur during the council's regular session scheduled to start at 7:30 o'clock in the Municipal Building council chambers.

Hopkins was tried in Municipal Court Aug. 30 on charges of driving while intoxicated and resisting arrest. The resisting arrest charge, which was dismissed because of a hung jury, stemmed from an incident in late May in which Hopkins was allegedly involved in a fight with Sedalia policemen John DeJarnette and Rene Dedrick. Hopkins, who claimed police brutality, was found guilty of driving while intoxicated. His attorney, Craig Cassing, Friday indicated Hopkins plans to appeal the decision to Circuit Court.

In other business, the council will review bids on the demolishing of 13 buildings which have been officially declared condemned by the council and City Building Inspector Woodrow Garrison.

The locations of the structures are: 400 East Second, 308 East Second, 716 North Moniteau, 500 East Third, 504 East Third, 410 North Washington, 409 North Osage, 509 North Lamine, 636 East Fifth, 204 East Morgan, 612 West Henry, and 504 North Quincy.

Although legal notices indicated that the project would cover 15 structures, Garrison explained Monday that demolition permits have since been obtained by the owners of two buildings, located at 1516 East Third and 1105 West Ninth.

Walch withdraws from November race

Pettis County Presiding Judge Harry Walch has withdrawn his name from the Republican ticket in the November election. The Republican County Committee will hold a meeting soon, according to Walch, to nominate a replacement.

Walch said Monday morning that health reasons made his decision necessary. In July, 1973, Walch had a malignant tumor removed from his sinus passages. He has undergone extensive treatment since then.

"I made my decision to withdraw last week, but I intend to finish the term unless something strikes me down," Walch said.

The presiding judge said, "I hated to do it," but said he could see no other choice. Walch said he plans to return to the flour brokerage business after his term expires in January.

County Clerk Mary Jane Wilson pointed out a state statute that says a party must file a name to fill a vacancy on the ballot with the secretary of states' office 30 days before an election.

Western District Judge John Bluhm, the other Republican on the court, said Walch's withdrawal from the race was regrettable, but said he understood the reason for it. He declined to say if his name would be in contention for the office. Bluhm is presently running for re-election.

Harry Walch

Former Republican County Chairman Leroy Luchs said Bluhm might be a possibility since he has experience on the county court.

Luchs said he regretted Walch's decision. The party meeting is expected to be the first of next week, according to Luchs.

Why I back the bonds

Howard Blakely

Many educators, businessmen and citizens in Pettis and Benton Counties feel that State Fair Community College serves a vital role in the education of the residents of the counties.

On Sept. 24, district patrons will vote on a bond issue for $5.5 million to construct a vocational-technical building and a learning center at the college.

A new classification policy of the State Board of Education will require by 1976 that school districts must offer at least five career type vocational programs for their students. SFCC makes these programs available to Pettis and Benton County school districts for a fraction of the cost the district would have to pay.

Howard Blakely, 57, LaMonte, president of the LaMonte R-4 School District, told The Democrat-Capitol that this vocational service is invaluable to his district.

"It would be impossible for small schools like LaMonte to furnish the quality education like State Fair can offer."

Blakely said that LaMonte is in the process of building a new high school and "we could not have afforded it if we didn't get services from the college." He added:

"I want to express our appreciation to State Fair for its personnel and its availability to the smaller school districts for furnishing a quality education for everyone in the districts."

"The vocational training at SFCC helps the whole community, not just the young. I know people who come and take night courses and work during the day."

"It would be good if every citizen could see how bad State Fair really needs this bond issue to continue its vocational efforts. People should know of the shortage of facilities and overcrowding at the college."

Blakely said that he believes the bond issue will pass Sept. 24. "People are just more informed than the last time. It is an economical building effort at a relatively low cost."

Nine killed in weekend auto mishaps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eight traffic accidents over the weekend in Missouri resulted in nine deaths.

Darrell Eugene Martin, 28, Neosho, and James Owens, 85, Fairview, Mo., a passenger in Martin's car, were killed Saturday in a head-on collision on Missouri 37 near Butterfield, in the southwest corner of the state.

There were six deaths Saturday. Two were killed Friday night, the other on Sunday.

The highway patrol said Carol Sue Machenia, 27, Braggadocio, Mo., died in a Caruthersville hospital Sunday shortly after her car went off a Pemiscot County road in the Missouri Bootheel into a drainage ditch.

Deaths Friday night:

Willard W. Wood, 25, Springfield, whose motorcycle and a car collided at a Springfield intersection.

Dan Wimsatt, Raytown, Mo., whose motorcycle crashed on U.S. 50 at the southeast edge of Kansas City.

Others killed Saturday:

Karon Eastep, 23, Mansfield, Tex., in a two-car collision on Missouri 160 near Springfield.

Emmett Smith, 65, Sunrise Beach, whose pickup truck went off a county road and struck a tree near the Lake of the Ozarks.

Loy N. Roberts, 73, Sikeston, in a two-car collision on U.S. 60 near Sikeston.

Don R. Sheldon, 43, rural Waynesville, whose pickup crashed on U.S. 66 near Waynesville.

Communists credited with Saigon bombing

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Police said Communists bombed a government office today wounding five persons, one day after a man described as a wealthy playboy army captain blew up a South Vietnamese jetliner in the air killing all 71 persons aboard.

The office bombing was the first act of terrorism in Saigon attributed to Communists since the January 1973 cease-fire, police said.

Police said a man and three women on motorbikes hurled the explosives into a downtown building and the blast wounded two South Vietnamese military officers and three others.

Police described the four as "Communist terrorists" without elaborating. They escaped, witnesses said.

The Sunday hijacking was the first to result in a large number of deaths and it was the first hijacked plane to be blown up in the air.

The officials said the hijacker, 31-year-old Le Duc Tan, bypassed security checks Sunday when he boarded the Air Vietnam Boeing 727 at Da Nang for a flight to Saigon.

Police in Da Nang were reported questioning Tan's wife, who owns a beauty parlor there, and an air force security sergeant who they said helped Tan evade the security check.

Officials said when the airliner was about halfway from Da Nang to Saigon, Tan ordered the pilot to turn back and fly to the North Vietnamese capital. Instead, the pilot prepared to land at Phan Rang, 160 miles northeast of Saigon, and Tan set off two grenades he had brought aboard the plane, the officials said.

Eyewitnesses said the plane made one pass over the airfield, circled back and banked sharply as it approached the runway. They said there was an explosion and the plane crashed nose first not far from a minefield.

The plane burst into flames when it hit the ground and the fire spread to the minefield, setting off a claymore antipersonnel mine.

The eight crew members and 59 of the 63 passengers were Vietnamese, according to the passenger list. The others were two South Koreans, a Filipino and a Frenchman.

By nightfall rescue teams searching in the rain through the charred wreckage had recovered 68 bodies, many of them badly mangled, officials said. They also recovered a special tape recorder aboard the plane to record conversations during an emergency.

It was the third attempt in two years — all unsuccessful — to hijack a South Vietnamese aircraft to North Vietnam. Air Vietnam reportedly has ordered its pilots to refuse to fly to North Vietnam even under duress. Observers say the airline's security precautions have been lax and haphazard, but one official said security measures were being tightened at all airports.

Tan's motive was not known yet. Authorities said he had a bachelor of arts degree in political science, joined the army in 1962 after service in the militia as a commando, married in 1964 and had three children. Although assigned to Dalat, he lived in Da Nang and was known there as a wealthy playboy with a succession of automobiles.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today that Alexander M. Haig Jr. will be recalled to active Army duty and named supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Ford to hold news conference tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will hold a news conference to be broadcast on television and radio from the East Room at 8 p.m. EDT today, a spokesman said.

The session will be the second of Ford's five-week-old presidency and comes the same day as he signed executive orders implementing his program of clemency for Vietnam-era draft evaders and deserters.

Questioning of the President is certain to focus on his controversial pardon for former President Richard M. Nixon.

Resignation increase is expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's revamping of the White House staff is expected to pick up speed and produce a series of resignations after the imminent departure of staff chief Alexander M. Haig Jr.

In an interview with the Associated Press, Haig said Keneth R. Cole plans to resign as director of the domestic council, a position he took over last year from Watergate casualty John D. Ehrlichman.

Another White House official said it also was likely that Ford will replace Jerry Jones as staff secretary, a key post in the White House management under resigned President Richard M. Nixon's setup.

Haig said his own resignation will be announced shortly but he would not confirm widespread expectations that he will be named commander of American and NATO forces in Europe.

Robert T. Hartmann, a close personal adviser to Ford, said the new President will change the White House staff structure in major ways but said he did not anticipate "a real Stalinlike purge" of Nixon administration holdovers.

"At present nothing is fixed," he said in an interview with the magazine U.S. News and World Report. "My guess is that what will evolve eventually will not be a military general staff or a corporate pyramid."

"They're still going to need a chief of staff," a Haig associate insisted. But Ford people have privately indicated little enthusiasm for the idea, talking in terms of a weak staff chief rather than a powerful figure like Haig.

Clay T. Whitehead, a resigning Nixon appointee, says Ford's advisers are concerned about military influence on the presidential staff.

Citing Haig as an example, Whitehead said on Sunday on the CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" program. "There have been a number of military officers doing substantive staff jobs in the White House."

If Haig's resignation is followed by those of Cole and Jones, who was appointed at Haig's behest, no Nixon men would remain in a position to exert major direct influence on the flow of paper and people to the Oval Office.

Artist is sentenced in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Artist Nadezhda Elskaya, one of five Russians arrested at an unauthorized exhibition of abstract art, was sentenced today to 15 days in prison for petty hooliganism, her friends reported.

They said the verdict was handed down by a Moscow regional court. But they had no word on the fate of the other four defendants who went on trial.

The exhibition Sunday was broken up by goon squads with bulldozers and trucks who destroyed the paintings, arrested a number of the artists and spectators and roughed up Americans and others in the crowd.

The others who went on trial were artists Yevgeny Rukhin, Oskar Rabin, Rabin's son Alexander, 22, and photographer Vladimir Sychov, 28. Charges against the four were not known.

Organizers of the exhibit sent a protest to the central committee of the Communist party, and the United States Embassy said it was protesting Sunday's attacks on American correspondents and a diplomat.

Some 500 spectators, including foreign diplomats and reporters, were watching as about 20 artists began setting up the exhibit in a muddy vacant lot about noon Sunday. Suddenly four bulldozers roared down the field toward the crowd, followed by squads of toughs and dump trucks.

As the crowd ran, the canvases were crushed or thrown into the mud-filled dump trucks. Officials later said the paintings were burned.

Abstract art does not conform to the realistic, photographic style prescribed by the Soviet Communist party.

As the crowd of men, women and children fled, water trucks drove by spraying them.

The squads of young men pummeled the artists and foreign correspondents, but there were no reports of serious injuries.

Artists and spectators were driven away in police vans, and at least eight persons were known to be in custody Sunday night.

One gang shoved New York Times correspondent Christopher Wren's camera into his face, chipping a tooth, as he was photographing the water trucks. Then two men grabbed him and another one punched him in the stomach.

Lynne Olson of The Associated Press tried to help Wren, and a policeman knocked her to the ground with a blow in the stomach. U.S. Consul Leonard Willems was shoved hard by another tough.

A woman scurried about yelling: "Foreigners! Diplomats! Reporters! They're all spies!"

"She's right, you know," one of the toughs commented to a newsman.

Vietnam War critic heading clemency board

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford on Monday designated former Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell of New York, a critic of the Vietnam War, to be chairman of the nine-member Presidential Clemency Board that will consider the cases of draft evaders and deserters already convicted by military or civilian courts.

Goodell, 48, now is in private law practice. He is an old friend of the President.

The other board members are:

Dr. Ralph Adams, 59, president of Troy State University, Troy, Alabama; James P. Dougovita, 28, a decorated Vietnam veteran who is a full-time teaching aide of minority students in the Department of Applied Technology, Michigan Tech University; Los Angeles lawyer Robert H. Finch, 51, former secretary of health, education and welfare and White House counselor in the Nixon administration; The Rev. Theodor Hesburgh, 57, president of the University of Notre Dame.

Also Vernon E. Jordan, 39, executive director of the National Urban League; James Maye, 31, executive director of Paralyzed Veterans of America headquartered in Washington; Mrs. Aide Casanas O'Connor, 52, assistant counsel to the New York Division of Housing and Community Renewal in New York City; and retired Marine Gen. Lewis W. Walt, 61.

Theft of flowers, planters reported

Sedalia police reported Monday three thefts of flower plants and planters over the weekend.

Mrs. Charles Snyder, 1301 West Fourth, reported that four flower pots and plants, valued at $100, were stolen from the front porch of her home sometime Saturday night.

Mrs. Lotus Combs, 1705 South Marvin, reported the theft of a $50 fern from her front porch Sunday night.

Police also reported that $40 in ferns and a $5 stool were stolen from the front porch of Herman J. Hoff, 621 East Ninth, sometime Saturday night.

Donnie Pretree, Elm Hills Mobile Park, reported to police that a .22 caliber rifle was stolen from his car Saturday night. Value was set at $65.

Figure corrected

Due to an error in tabulation, it was incorrectly reported in Sunday's Democrat-Capital that the Cooper County R-6 school district could raise $104,000 from a levy of 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The correct figure, based on the district's assessed valuation of $2,599,200, is $10,400.

The story dealt with the possible incorporation of the district into the State Fair Community College district.

James Pragman, Sweet Springs, is a patient at Trinity Lutheran Hospital, Kansas City.

Two killed, 26 injured by grenade

PARIS (AP) — Paris police are searching for a young man with long hair and a gray jacket who dropped a hand grenade into a crowded drugstore on the Left Bank, killing two persons and injuring 26 others.

Witnesses said the man dropped the grenade from a second-floor balcony on Sunday afternoon and escaped in the confusion after the explosion. He appeared to be about 25, witnesses said.

Police Chief Jean Paolini said he was told that the man was completely calm just before he dropped the grenade.

A fire brigade spokesman said the grenade rolled under a tobacco counter, and this may have reduced the force of the blast. But persons on the sidewalk outside the store were knocked off their feet.

Police Chief Jean Paolini said he was told that the man was completely calm just before he dropped the grenade.

A fire brigade spokesman said the grenade rolled under a tobacco counter, and this may have reduced the force of the blast. But persons on the sidewalk outside the store were knocked off their feet.

"Women and children ran screaming, blinded by the blood and the dust," said one witness. "One man had his chest ripped open."

The store on the Boulevard St. Germain is a honeycomb of lunch counters, boutiques and specialty stands.

A movie theater is in the basement, but the only evidence there of the explosion was a muffled thud and some dust falling from the ceiling. An employee calmed the audience, and the film — an erotic hit called "Emanuelle" — continued.

The blast left the first-floor area around the tobacco stand in shambles. Firemen swept aside bits of broken wood and torn plaster, looking for victims in the Saint-Germain-des-Pres drugstore.

A young boy was blown from the store out onto the sidewalk; there were large patches of blood where he landed.

Officials declined to speculate whether there was any connection between the grenade attack and the three Japanese terrorists holding 11 persons hostage in the French Embassy in The Hague since Friday.

Doctors discuss male dilemma

By SANDRA GITTENS
NEW YORK (AP) — Drs. Anne Steinmann and David J. Fox are in total agreement — the male in today's world is in a dilemma.

In a major social study Drs. Fox and Steinmann have written from their accumulation of research over the past 20 years "The Male Dilemma — How To Survive The Sexual Revolution."

Dr. Fox says the last seven or eight years he and Dr. Steinmann concentrated on male concepts and male roles. "That, plus the feelings which naturally emerged as we got more and more data that everyone, in the last five years, or maybe the last decade, in society was overly concerned with the adjustment problems of women but nobody was paying any attention to what seemed to us the obvious impact of these same situations on men. That's what oriented the book towards men. We could have written the same book on women in terms of the data."

Dr. Steinmann says the research goes back to the time when she was doing her dissertation.

"In 1951, as a matter of fact, even before that, I started to investigate the concept of roles for women. Of what they felt about themselves in terms of what was happening. The traditional role vs. the so called liberal role. The home oriented role as against the new career woman."

What she found was many more questions than answers. Taking college girls, their fathers and mothers, she found tremendous discrepancy in what women felt they really were as people and what they thought men wanted in a woman.

That's when Drs. Fox and Steinmann found each other. Having the same interest, they started questioning more and more people — doctors, lawyers all types of professional people — in America and abroad.

"Whenever we gave a research paper, we found the same discrepancies," she says. "Women felt a man wanted a home oriented woman — one to sit home and take care of the family. But women also felt they were entitled to a life of their own."

That led to the questioning of men. What did they think? What was their ideal woman like? "And we found that the ideal woman for the men was exactly the same as the woman's. So you see we had this problem that either somebody was lying or somebody was mis-projecting a feeling that he or she had or didn't have about the other," Dr. Steinmann said.

The problem she says the men faced was that they wanted to be aggressive — the traditional aspect of the male role. The man's ideal of himself was even more outgoing and more achieving, but he felt that a woman wanted a home oriented man. "A man who would be home with the kids and help around the house. A supermarket man," she says.

The women, she adds, felt their ideal man was aggressive, maybe to some extent home oriented, "but actually, women said they wanted a man like the man's ideal — more aggressive."

"The problem is one of communication, I think," said Dr. Fox. "That's what we're really talking about. These people were not effectively communicating to each other what they would say to us. And there is discrepancy between what they think or express on the one hand, and how they behave and the behavioral cues they give to each other. This is the major problem to which we address ourselves in the last chapter of the book."

Dr. Steinmann, however, feels the gap stems from the fact that women have been promised through their education the same opportunities as men.

"They have been out-jobbed in their homes. They don't have to do the weaving, the actual creative work in the home. Their jobs as homemakers have been taken away by technology," she explains.

"When the middle class woman started becoming educated she was promised the fruits of achieving roles yet nothing was forthcoming."

Dr. Fox points out that the generation they studied were between the ages of 35 and 55. They were children during a period when society in general had a different set of expectations.

"But," he says, "in the last 15 years as adults these people have accepted intellectually a very different set of expectations. When you speak to them on a verbal level they will tell you these aggressive expectations, yet their internal feeling-response is still very different according to specific situations."

"Take for example a wife who is going out to a meeting and the husband is staying home to mind the children," he says. "The husband understands why this is necessary, he understands that this is fair, he understands that his wife is allowed a life of her own, yet he still feels a reaction that 'My father never had this imposed on him, what the hell, I'm seen here as a babysitter.' And he effectively communicates both the words and the feelings to the wife. The wife therefore responds more thoroughly to the feeling and says, 'He really wants me to stay home, his acceptance of my freedom is a lot of baloney.'"

Both Dr. Steinmann and Fox go on to say that these discrepancies are part of the building basis for hostility in marriages today. "And I want to point out that you find the same discrepancies among college students today. Whether they are reacting to this generation that we are writing about is something that we still have to investigate," adds Dr. Steinmann.

Dr. Steinmann and Fox have each successfully combined marriage, family and career. Dr. Steinmann is a consulting psychologist, psychotherapist and lecturer at the New School for Social Research in New York City.

Dr. Fox is the director of Research and Graduate Studies at the School of Education, City College of the City of New York.

Garden Clubs district meeting

Food co-op cuts costs

By MARIA BRADEN
Associated Press Writer
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — "We try to cut food costs by cutting out the middleman — transporting, packaging and salaries," said Sandy Hyneman, manager of a food cooperative here.

Co-ops have sprouted across the country in response to rising food prices and as people become more aware of what's in the food they eat.

Lexington's Good Food Co-op was formed last summer and now has a membership of 350 households. It's an example of how the co-op idea has changed since it first became popular.

Once seen as an extension of the communal way of life, the co-op has become a viable alternative to the supermarket.

Mrs. Hyneman acknowledged that some co-ops are formed by people who have decided to drop out of the system, but she said the Lexington operation is an attempt to work within the system "in the way we think is best."

"Each co-op decides what it's going to be," she said. "People who come here are interested in good, cheap food."

A mark of its acceptance by the established community is the inclusion of the co-op on the "Welcome Wagon" that greets newcomers to the area.

"We're there along with all the Baptist churches in town," Mrs. Hyneman said.

Membership covers a wide economic range, including professionals and people who have decided to go back to living on the land. She said they range in age from "8 days to 70 years."

"We've stayed away from philosophical or religious affiliations as a way of welding the group," Mrs. Hyneman said. "Our only purpose is to get people eating good food."

Besides serving as a retail food outlet, the co-op is an information and education center. "We try to teach people what to eat and when and how to fix it," she said.

The co-op is a nonstock corporation with a board of directors, operating very much like any small retail store in the city. There are the usual problems of rent, salaries, insurance and taxes.

Elimination of the middleman allows the co-op to keep its markup on products to 15 per cent, Mrs. Hyneman said.

To avoid packing costs, members bring their own canisters and containers. Some products are sold in plastic bags that the co-op buys in quantity.

The co-op recycles bags that grain and flour come in and they are transformed into hand-made tote bags which are sold at the co-op.

"We try to recycle as much energy, paper, and whatever else as we can," Mrs. Hyneman said.

Co-op members grow some of the food and do all of the trucking from warehouses and farms where the co-op obtains its food.

Food sold at the co-op is limited mainly to grains and flour, cheeses, nuts, peanut butter, honey and pasta, but Mrs. Hyneman said the group plans to start selling other items, such as all-meat hot dogs.

Mrs. Hyneman said she splits her weekly food budget between the co-op and the local market, but envisions an expanded operation in which regular retail items would be sold in addition to health foods.

Who really owns a President's papers?

WASHINGTON — "Do unto former Presidents what you hope your successor will do unto you."

That might just as well be graffiti scribbled on the walls of the White House by the first president to grace the premises, for it is a sort of 11th commandment which is scrupulously obeyed because every incumbent knows it is the most golden of rules.

It is the rule which lets former presidents rake in a lot of gold once they leave office.

President Ford knelt down to this commandment in the part of his deal with Richard Nixon that got somewhat obscured by the explosion of national outrage over his blanket pardon of Nixon for crimes we don't yet know about and may never be told about.

Ford agreed that Nixon eventually can take from the White House as his own personal property the papers, records and tapes relating to his tenure as President.

That was a nice little gesture worth about $2 million to Nixon. Add it to Ford's request that Congress appropriate $850,000 to help Nixon in his "transition to private life" and you kind of get the feeling that Nixon won't need many psychiatrists to help him get over "the mental and emotional anxiety" which supposedly has been plaguing him.

Ford's action regarding these White House papers was thoroughly predictable under the White House rule of gold. Why should Ford mess with an age-old system designed to make him a millionaire once he leaves office?

Lyndon B. Johnson was so very solicitous of Dwight D. Eisenhower, briefing him on key decisions, mostly to insure that Eisenhower never criticized a major Johnson move, such as his wading deeper into a Vietnam war. And Johnson took care that no one trampled on the perquisites and privileges Eisenhower enjoyed and had grown rich by.

And when Richard Nixon came along, according to Nixon, Johnson gave him a very special welcome to the world's most exclusive club. The ex-President told the new President how to give away his papers and avoid paying taxes on his $200,000-a-year salary.

Thus Nixon became solicitous of Johnson, taking care not to criticize him personally; never questioning Johnson's ownership of, or right to profit from, documents recording his tenure in the White House.

And now Ford is super-solicitous with regard to Nixon, and seemingly oblivious of the fact that Nixon left office to prevent the Congress from voting officially that he was a crook, and the first President deserving to be thrown out of office.

Ford has worked out a deal where Nixon will still get his gold. Agent Irving Lazar (who spent three hours with Nixon recently and saw no sign that Nixon was so close to a breakdown that a sudden blanket pardon by Ford was required to save him) is now boasting that Nixon is going "to tell one of the great stories of all time" and make two million bucks.

Looking back at some of Nixon's press conferences, who can doubt that he will tell a great story: But librarians and book reviewers may have one hell of a time deciding whether to classify it as fiction or nonfiction.

This whole "presidential papers" business is an outrage. It is an ongoing rip-off which got locked into the cement of tradition because reverence for the office prevented Americans from challenging this business of departing presidents loading their pockets with canned goods from the White House larder.

Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., made a cogent observation the other day: "When a public officer while drawing public salary makes official records paid for by the taxpayers on paper paid for by the taxpayers, those records in good conscience belong to the government."

Could anything make more sense?

But who bells the cat — and when? Is there no way, under our system, to stop this cozy business where the new President stuffs his predecessor's wallet in slaving expectation that his successor will do the same for him?

Excessive reins put on economy

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — Economic recovery, and the control of inflation are more difficult because Congress has legislated so many crippling restrictions on trade, production, sales and transportation.

These have lowered competition, forced higher prices, increased shortages and impaired service.

In the main, these barriers have been created at the insistence of one special-interest group or another. Campaign contributions have been the effective leverage used by some of those groups.

In other cases, Congress considered only the effect of the legislation on the petitioners concerned without taking into account what the new laws would do to other farmers or industries, to the consumer or to the health of the economy. In some cases the laws were voted to protect weak industries which are now strong or to prevent unfair competition from abroad when raw materials now scarce were in overabundance.

Dozens, perhaps hundreds, of these laws and regulations are now counterproductive. That is, they do more harm than good to the economy, to the consumer and frequently even to the groups they were designed to assist or protect.

Complicated, frequently meaningless regulations, including route restrictions, govern the trucking industry, keeping prices perhaps 20 per cent higher than they need be.

Railroads have almost as much trouble lowering rates as they do in raising them. The red tape and time involved in getting government approval for cutting costs and for eliminating outmoded ways of delivering goods by rail keeps hundreds of bureaucrats employed.

Outmoded air rules unconnected with safety prevent the competition that could slash air passenger fares.

Quotas limit the import of products badly needed in this time of scarcity. Embargoes limit other imports, uranium for one and some types of food. Other rules hamper the domestic interstate shipment of some products to keep prices up. There are even some production quotas still on the books.

The Congress-voted monopoly position of the post office makes shipment of some mail and packages more expensive than need be.

Laws against interstate banking make efficient service difficult. The ceiling on what savings and loan associations pay those who put their money in these institutions is so low the solvency of many is endangered. The low rates discourage depositors and prevent the growth of capital needed to finance the lagging housing industry.

Other laws protect and encourage more work for industry and for labor, unhealthy for both. Some other less-economically-harmful way must be found to give legitimate protection and bolster rightful income.

Time and again the government has stepped in with millions of dollars of the taxpayer's money to bail out one group, an industry, company or another — at an accumulated cost of billions.

Former Treasury Secretary and Presidential economic counselor George Shultz has warned that a bill now pending before Congress which would require 30 per cent of the imported petroleum to be transported in American tankers would add substantially to the price of oil and gasoline in this country.

Joe's sad story

Our story involves an ordinary guy. Let's call him Joe. He looks like a lot of other Joes.

You would think that Joe was a lucky man. For the last 10 years he has had pay increases to match every increase in the cost of living. But Joe is still unhappy. His paycheck does not go as far as it used to.

Economists of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States can explain the chagrin of ordinary U.S. citizen Joe. They tell his story this way.

In 1964 Joe went to work at a pay of $10,000 a year. That year:

- ✓ His income tax was $1,200.
- ✓ His Social Security tax was $174.
- ✓ His take-home pay was $8,626.
- ✓ His taxes took 13.7 per cent of his gross earnings.

Now, 10 years later, with a long string of cost-of-living pay increases added to his paycheck, Joe earns $15,400 a year.

- ✓ His income tax will be $1,908.
- ✓ His Social Security tax will be $737.
- ✓ His take-home will be $12,755.
- ✓ His taxes will take 17.3 per cent of his gross earnings.

Meanwhile, inflation has eroded the value of the U.S. dollar — by 60 per cent since the end of World War II and by approximately 10 per cent in the last year.

The $12,755 Joe will take home in 1974 really is worth $529 less than the $8,626 he took home 10 years ago.

So take it from Joe. In 20 years, if inflation keeps rising at the 10 per cent rate, Joe will need to earn $113,000 a year to keep pace. Meanwhile, he will be paying out half his earnings in taxes.

And his take home pay of $57,300 will really be worth only $7,800 of today's dollars.

Sorry Joe. (U.S. Chamber of Commerce)

Ehrlichman a patsy, Nixon tapes reveal

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The Nixon tapes, which have been withheld from the public for use in the Watergate trials, portray John Ehrlichman as a patsy.

Sources who have listened to the tapes say that ex-President Richard Nixon would discuss strategy with his top aide, H.R. Haldeman. Then they would call in Ehrlichman and go through the same discussion again, thus giving him the impression that he was a full participant in the decision-making.

But invariably, they would adopt the strategy that Nixon and Haldeman had already agreed upon and the unsuspecting Ehrlichman would wind up doing the dirty work. As one source put it, "Nixon and Haldeman used Ehrlichman as their hired gun."

They sent Ehrlichman, for example, to try to persuade CIA Deputy Director Vernon Walters to head off the FBI's investigation into the plumbers' operations. Ehrlichman was also assigned to approach ex-Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and to ask the unwilling Mitchell to take the rap for the Watergate fiasco.

Sources close to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski say that Ehrlichman is now aware how Nixon and Haldeman used him. "That's why Ehrlichman has called the former President as a witness," said one source.

"It is clear," agreed another, "that Ehrlichman has gone off the reservation." In other words, he no longer will try to protect Nixon and Haldeman.

The view of Ehrlichman as a puppet, manipulated by Nixon and Haldeman, comes from a cumulative study of the secret tapes, say our sources.

ROCKEFELLER INVESTIGATION: A painstaking but preliminary FBI investigation of Nelson Rockefeller has produced no information that should prevent his confirmation as vice president.

Agents are still digging, however, into rumors that a Rockefeller-financed operation in Latin America was infiltrated by Communist sympathizers.

The investigation is centering on the American Association for Economic and Social Development, which received grants for 14 years from the Rockefeller Brothers Foundation to bring rural reform and better schools to South America. "The main thing we don't know," confided an FBI source, "is how they spent the money."

Another Rockefeller enterprise under investigation by the FBI is the International Basic Economy Corporation, founded by Nelson Rockefeller to operate supermarkets, poultry farms and machinery equipment facilities in some 20 countries, mainly in Latin America.

The FBI is also examining more closely the Commission on Critical Choices, which conducted studies of world problems for Rockefeller. It has been suggested this was set up to groom him for the White House.

Our FBI sources stress that Rockefeller isn't suspected of any subversive or shady dealings. But the FBI wants to be able to answer any questions that may be raised by Rockefeller's most extreme critics.

Agents have questioned just about everyone who has had any dealings with Rockefeller from doctors and clergymen to sheriff's and political figures.

A picture has emerged of a Rockefeller who has managed to keep above the hurly-burly. He has insulated himself from any questionable activities, the FBI has found, by a layer of attorneys, financial advisers and political associates.

"The rough-and-tumble stuff was handled by his associates," said a source.

FBI agents have been running up to Capitol Hill almost daily with huge Rockefeller dossiers, which they have shown to key members of Congress.

"Rocky looks awfully good," said a source with access to the dossiers.

NAVAL SUPERIORITY: Intelligence reports confirm the conclusion of the authoritative British publication, "Jane's Fighting Ships," that the Soviet Navy had surpassed the U.S. fleet in fighting power. Here's a rundown:

- ✓ In submarines, the Soviet Union has deployed a fleet of 67 ballistic missile submarines, many of them nuclear powered. This compares to 41 American missile subs. States one NATO document: "The Soviet submarine force is now more capable and has outbuilt NATO in nuclear-powered submarines."

✓ In surface ships, the newest Soviet vessels "carry more elaborate and more sophisticated electronic systems. One Soviet surface vessel, according to NATO intelligence, is "ton for ton, the most powerful warship ever built."

According to another confidential document, "the sophisticated missile systems of its advanced surface ships gives the Soviet Union a powerful ship-to-ship capability and a considerable superiority in missile units over NATO."

NATO commanders are deeply concerned over the deployment of Soviet ships in the Indian Ocean. Concludes another NATO report: Russia's "power to rapidly switch ships from the Mediterranean to the Indian Ocean, once the Suez Canal is reopened, will considerably increase her presence and influence in an area which six years ago was a Western lake."

Keep the merit system

As long-time Sedalia residents with demonstrated interest in community affairs, we have viewed with considerable concern the current controversy surrounding the police department.

We have lived here both under an elected police administration and under the current merit system. Certainly neither system is perfect, but the merit system offers the greatest opportunity for a well-managed police department, and it operates without the additional handicap and instability of an elected official at its head.

We know that within the merit system there are the necessary ordinances and regulations to correct whatever problems exist, and we feel strongly that this is the definite solution to our problem.

Adoption of the merit system was a step forward. We urge the City Council and members of the community involved to work for improvements within this system, rather than regressing to a system previously discarded.

Save soybeans

This year, more than ever before, there is more to be gained by careful harvesting of soybeans. With soybeans over $6 per bushel, and average harvest losses at 10 per cent, you could be leaving about $25 per acre in the field.

Shattered beans, loose or lodged stalks and beans left on the stubble make up the gathering unit losses. These generally make up about 90 per cent of your total losses.

Beans should be harvested at about 13 per cent moisture content if they are to be stored without drying. Shattering and gathering losses increase tremendously as moisture levels drop below 13 per cent. In normal seasons, beans may be at 12 or 13 per cent in the morning and drop to 8 or 9 per cent in mid-afternoon. Shattering losses are very high when beans are this dry. To prevent losses, you may want to stop harvesting during the afternoon, and do most of it in the evening and early morning when moisture levels are more ideal.

Soybeans can be combined readily at 18 or 19 per cent moisture levels, with fewer losses. If you are storing your own beans, and have drying equipment, you may want to start harvest at these levels. Beans can be dried easily in a bin with natural air.

Where soybeans are mature, and weeds or volunteer corn is a problem, defoliant can help. These are usually applied when about half of the leaves have dropped from the soybeans. In about a week to ten days after the application, the weeds and beans will be dry enough to harvest. Volunteer corn may take a few days longer to dry enough so that it won't interfere with harvesting.

With an excessive amount of weeds and volunteer corn in many soybean fields this year, the use of a defoliant could be helpful.

Checking your harvest losses often will pay big dividends. Even in the same field conditions will vary a lot from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Take two or three minutes and check your losses occasionally. Four beans per square foot means about one bushel per acre. Don't leave your profits in the field.

Defoliation
Late planted soybeans and sorghum may present problems as harvesting operations get underway. Where fields are infested with growing weeds or where the crop is still partially green and succulent, an effective desiccant can be used to advantage.

The only defoliant that can be used on soybeans if the crop is to be used for feed or food is Ortho Paraquat. Paraquat used properly will defoliate beans and will do a satisfactory job of drying up most of the week growth in the crop. The sprayer should be calibrated to discharge from 20 to 40 gallons per acre. Apply when beans are fully mature and when half the leaves have dropped. Immature beans will be injured. Do not pasture until 15 days following treatment. Remove livestock at least 30 days before slaughter.

In the case of grain sorghum there is no desiccant available that can be used in compliance with EPA regulations in 1974.

Lawn repairs
The best month for making lawn repairs, or generally improving the bluegrass lawn, is September. When soil is still warm, but night temperatures become cooler, the grass makes its best growth. Glass blades grow more slowly than in spring, but a more vigorous root system develops and spreads to give the lawn a fuller appearance.

If only a single fertilization is given to the lawn each year, the September treatment is most beneficial. Well balanced lawn fertilizers should be used to apply from 1 to 1½ pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn area.

A fertilizer spreader is an important piece of equipment to get good, uniform coverage. Too much fertilizer can burn the grass.

Repair dead spots that have appeared during the last season from insects, disease or other conditions. Examine these dead spots carefully before working them over to try to determine what caused them.

A good-looking lawn does not develop by tossing cheap seed into a hard, crusted soil. Choose good quality bluegrass seed from a reputable dealer. Mixtures containing primarily bluegrass with some creeping red fescue or perennial ryegrass are most desirable for the average lawn. For high quality lawns, blends of improved bluegrass varieties are best.

Many broad-leaved weeds can be killed in the fall. Dandelions, plantain, dock, thistle, ground ivy and white clover can be killed by applications of 2-4-D. Spot killing of some grasses can be done with dalapon.

Still going strong

Phillip H. Hunn, Rock Island, Ill., is not about to be deterred from his horticultural endeavors just because he'll be 100 years old Sept. 22. He probably could get one of his eight grandchildren, 25 great-grandchildren or 10 great-great-grandchildren to help, but "he's a stubborn old cuss," according to his daughter. (AP Wirephoto)

NLRB chairman is leaving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward B. Miller is about to leave as chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, having failed to get a reorganization of the board he once called a "Rube Goldberg" agency.

Miller, whose term expires Dec. 16, said in an interview that he has informed the White House that he will not accept a second term if offered.

The 54-year-old former Chicago labor relations lawyer said there also are personal reasons for his desire to leave the post he has held for five years. But he said he would have considered staying had the agency been overhauled.

Miller is something of an oddity in Washington where government officials rarely criticize their own agencies.

"Our Rube Goldberg labor board," he once wrote, is "a funny-looking and seemingly hopelessly inoperable machine for deciding labor disputes."

That was nearly two years ago. He said that since then, nothing has changed despite Miller's appeals to the American Bar Association, unions and Congress to overhaul the agency's structure.

Miller's chief concern is that the board's caseload is too large to be handled effectively under the structure which has changed little since its creation in 1935 to administer the National Labor Relations Act.

The board handed down a record 1,520 decisions in unfair labor practice and union representation cases in the year ending July 30.

"I just don't think it's really possible for five board members to give careful review and attention to that large number of cases," Miller said.

In its early years, the workload was light — only 33 cases in 1938. The number has grown every year along with the growth in the economy.

"We have somehow managed to keep pace with it," says Miller. "This five-man board, aided by staffs which have had almost no increase in personnel since I became chairman four years ago, has coped with an approximate 25 per cent rise in cases over that period."

A case takes about two years to reach an enforceable decision.

Cocoa supplies strained

WASHINGTON (AP) — Manufacturers plan to raise the price of vending machine candy bars to 20 cents because of a strain on the world supply of cocoa and chocolate products.

The price increase, on the heels of a jump from 10 to 15 cents with little or no change in candy bar size, reflects the development of a sweet tooth in the rest of the world as active as that in the United States.

World cocoa consumption has been expanding along with increases in population and income, says Rex E. T. Dull of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agriculture Service.

But unfavorable growing conditions in many major producing countries have brought the 1973 and 1974 world crops below consumption needs, sending cocoa prices to a record high. Dull writes in the current issue of Foreign Agriculture.

This 20-cent candy bar is being brought on by record high cocoa bean prices but also by higher costs of other candy bar ingredients such as sugar, nuts and milk, Dull says.

He says manufacturers also are paying more for labor, packaging and transportation.

"Normally, in times of high cocoa bean prices, manufacturers have varied bar weights and increased usage of cocoa butter substitutes and extenders, such as coconut and soybean oils, to keep confectionary retail prices stable," Dull says. "But today, these commodities are selling at very high levels."

Cocoa bean prices peaked at $1.30 per pound on the New York spot market in early

May, more than double the price of a year before. However, the price had adjusted somewhat by the end of August to $1.06.

"Currently, world stocks are estimated to be at very low levels—slightly more than a 2-month supply, compared with more than a 7-months' supply in 1965 when cocoa beans sold for as low as 11 cents per pound," Dull says.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the current strong demand for agricultural products, farm competitors of the United States are spending more than ever to promote their products in export markets.

Susan D. Brown of the Foreign Agricultural Service says major agricultural exporters in competition with the United States spend more than $135 million in fiscal 1973 for market development. This compares with $63 million in fiscal 1966. Current reports indicate another jump in fiscal 1974.

Robbery interrupts services at church

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Five armed men burst into the New Hope Missionary Baptist Church during services Sunday and one shouted:

"Halt! This is a stickup and nobody move."

Police said about $400 in cash and jewelry was taken from the congregation of about 100 persons.

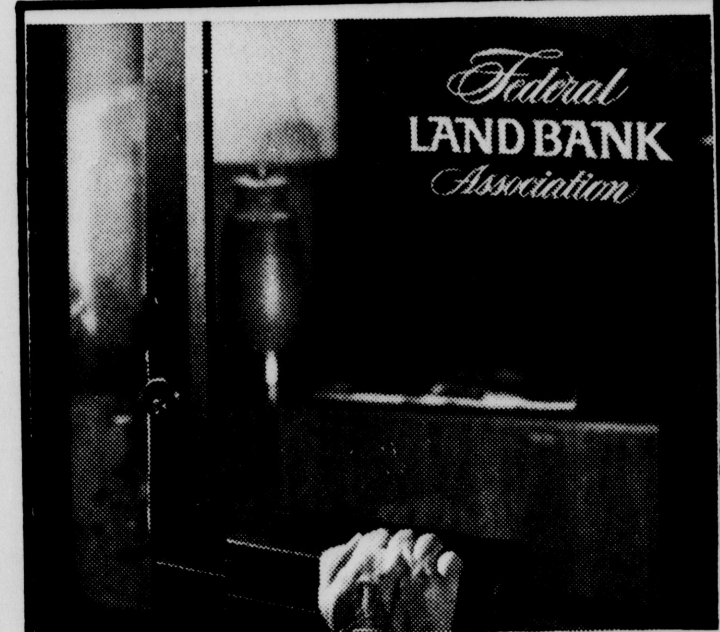

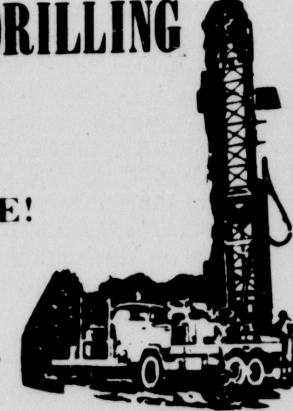

The Rev. Wardell Williams, who was just beginning his sermon when the robbers arrived, said, "It's going to affect our attendance. No one wants to come where they're going to get robbed."

The first post office in Arkansas was established at Davidsonville in June 1817.

Upshaw 'steals' show in Chiefs' 24-16 win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Defensive end Marvin Upshaw had his greatest moment of football glory Sunday.

Upshaw stole a pass off the fingertips of John Riggins and ran 52 yards for a touchdown that spurred the Kansas City Chiefs to a 24-16 National Football League victory over the New York Jets.

"The first thing I wanted to do after I got the ball," Upshaw said, "was stop and rest. That was the first touchdown I ever scored."

"I saw Riggins set for the screen as he came around. I was lucky enough he didn't have complete control of it, and I came up with it."

The touchdown burst by Upshaw came with 10 seconds left in the first half with the Chiefs trailing 16-7. Joe Namath, the sore-kneed Jets quarterback, threw the pass. After Upshaw set sail toward the game, a wave of Chiefs formed near him.

"I thought about trying to go after him," Namath said. "I thought about it... it was just a routine pass. If the guy is covered, you just throw it on the ground. If he's open, you slip it to him. The ball bounced up once, up again and..."

Namath's voice faded away. Until Upshaw's interception.

the Chiefs had had a miserable afternoon on offense, being plagued by poor field position. They penetrated their 30-yard line only twice, once when they traveled 46 yards on five plays with Ed Podolak jamming into the line for two yards and a touchdown.

A 27-yard field goal by Jan Stenerud gave the Chiefs a 17-16 edge in the third period. Emmitt Thomas intercepted another Namath pass and ran 38 yards for a touchdown in the final two minutes.

Despite four interceptions, Namath was brilliant. He completed 14 of 30 passes for 210 yards and two touchdowns. He capped drives with a 13-yard end zone pass to Richard Cas-ter and a seven-yard toss for six more points to Ed Bell.

Namath said he wasn't pleased with his performance. "We lost," he explained. "And my knee? It feels fine but what difference does it make?"

Chiefs Coach Hank Stram said the game, nationally tele-vised and played before a crowd of 74,854, "was not a great one for us. It was a game of great plays, particularly de-fensively. The play that turned the game around for us was Upshaw's interception. He gave us fire."

"Any time Namath has the ball, he's dangerous. And those three receivers of theirs are really murder."

Stram praised Larry Brun-son, the Chiefs' rookie wide re-ceiver, who caught three passes for 43 yards, returned a punt for 29 and a kickoff for 57.

Charley Winner, the new Jets coach, thought his team "played pretty good football. It was just two big plays that did us in."

Winner did not elaborate on the two big plays but added, "The middle screen looked like a safe play. We wanted a field goal."

That was an obvious refer-ence to the backfire created by Upshaw.

Perry, Ryan pick up 20th victories

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

American League 6. Na-tional League 0.

That's not the score of base-ball's All-Star game, or any inter-league exhibition series. It's the number of 20-game winners in the two leagues thus far in 1974.

Gaylord Perry of the Cleve-land Indians became No. 5 Sunday, stopping the Baltimore Orioles 1-0 on five hits. And moments later, California strikeout king Nolan Ryan became No. 6, pitching the Angels to a 6-2 triumph with a three-hitter.

But Sunday night, Jim Bib-by was foiled in his bid to become No. 7. Sal Bando's two-run homer in the third in-ning lifted the Oakland A's to a 3-1 victory over the Texas Rangers and Bibby, 19-17.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York whipped Detroit 10-2, Minnesota de-feated Kansas City 5-2 and Milwaukee beat Boston 9-5.

Perry and Ryan joined Chi-cago's Wilbur Wood, Boston's Luis Tiant, Oakland's Catfish Hunter and Texas Ferguson Jenkins in the 20-victory circle. Bibby, Baltimore's Mike Cuellar and Kansas City's Steve Busby have 19 each in the AL, while Jack Billingham is the lone National Leaguer with 19.

Why the difference? Two letters: DH.

The designated hitter rule, introduced in the American League last year but not adopted by the National, has changed pitching patterns as well as increased run produc-tion. Last year, for example, 2 of the 13 20-game winners in the majors were in the Ameri-can League.

"With the designated hitter rule, you go with your starting pitchers longer," Dick Wil-iams, the former Oakland skipper who now manages the Angels, once explained. "That's proven by the higher number of decisions by the starting pitchers."

Indians 1, Orioles 0

Perry, who had a 15-1 re-cord on July 3, was given a de-cent shot at winning 30, in-stead is now 20-10. His 20th victory came on his 36th birth-day.

Baltimore's Ross Grimsley, who had pitched 20 con-secutive scoreless innings, walked John Loewenstein on four pitches with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to force in the only run of the game.

Angels 6, White Sox 2

Ryan, 20-15, struck out seven White Sox batters in re-aching the 20-game circle for the second straight year. He now has 337 strikeouts for the ing the major league record of equalling the major league re-cord of 383 he set last year.

Boston by 3 1/2 in the AL East race.

Brewers 9, Red Sox 5

Gorman Thomas' grand-slam home run in the first in-ning and Tim Johnson two-run triple highlighted a four-run third for the Brewers.

The loss dropped the third-place Red Sox 3 1/2 games be-hind the New York Yankees in the AL East race.

Twins 5, Royals 2

Joe Decker fired a six-hitter and struck out eight for the Twins, raising his record to 15-2.

National League scores: St. Louis 3, Philadelphia 1; Mon-treal 5, Pittsburgh 4; Chicago 5, New York 4; Atlanta 3, San Diego 1; Los Angeles 7, Cin-cinnati 1, and Houston 6-4, San Francisco 0-8.

Lincoln U. defense turns back Langston

By The Associated Press

The axiom that defense wins football games was ap-arent by the low scoring con-tests involving Missouri col-lege teams over the weekend, but it was epitomized by Lin-coln University's 2-0 victory over Langston of Oklahoma.

The only score came in the fourth quarter when Lincoln defensive end Dennis Beavers tackled Langston's punter Cary Carson in the end zone for a safety after the ball was snapped over Carson's head. Lincoln, 1-0, held Langston to only 34 yards rushing.

In other games, Missouri-Rolla downed Missouri Western 15-7 with Mike Joshua scoring two touchdowns; Northwest Mis-souri intercepted five passes en route to a 13-0 victory over Pittsburg; Southwest Mis-souri topped Emporia State 24-13, and Missouri Valley blitzed Iowa Wesleyan 40-0.

Also Washington University edged Central Methodist 10-6; Tarkio lost to Peru, Neb., 8-0; Northeast Missouri bowed to Harding, Ark., 21-6; William Jewell succumbed to Washburn 21-13, and Southeast Missouri dropped a 19-3 verdict to Delta, Miss., State.

Missouri-Rolla fullback Mike Joshua scored two touchdowns, one on a one-yard plunge and the other on a 55-yard dash. Western's only score came on Marc Hutchens two-yard dive. Rolla is 1-1 and Western 0-2.

Top bandit for Northwest was Dave Chew, who had two interceptions. The scoring came on a nine-yard touchdown pass from John Beeson to Dave Guerrero and a seven-yard jaunt by Ricardo Shipp. Northwest now is 2-0.

Southwest running back Gino Travline scored twice as the Bears jumped to a 21-0 lead then held on for the vic-tory in their opener.

Northeast Missouri's Tom Williams connected on two touchdown passes to Greg Morton and Kent Fensom had a 29-yard field goal but the Bulldogs couldn't win their opener.

Pats upset Dolphins, 34-24

Defense keynote in openers

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

You can grade the National Football League's opening day D for defense.

Don't feel too sorry for the Miami Dolphins, 34-24 upset losers to the New England Patriots in their NFL opener Sunday. After all, the defending world champions did score three touchdowns and a field goal, and that's considerable more than some clubs managed on a day of defense-dominated openers.

Baltimore was shut out by Pittsburgh 30-0 and Atlanta was blanked by Dallas 24-0. St. Louis managed only one touchdown, but that was enough to whip Philadelphia, which managed only one field goal, 7-3. Four other clubs scored 10 points or less.

Cincinnati ripped Cleveland 33-7. Washington tagged the New York Giants 13-10. Chicago topped Detroit 17-9. Los Angeles beat Denver 17-10. Minnesota whipped Green Bay 32-17. Houston downed San Diego 21-14. San Francisco shaded New Orleans 17-13 and Kansas City stopped the New York Jets 24-16.

The NFL's opening weekend concludes tonight with Buffalo facing Oakland in a nationally-televised game.

Patriots 34, Dolphins 24
While the defenses ruled other games, Miami's didn't seem ready. Jim Plunkett picked the Dolphins apart for 177 yards and running backs Mack Heron and Sam Cunningham gained 88 and 87 respectively as the Patriots sprung their surprise on the Super Bowl champs. The 34 points were the most allowed by the Dolphins since 1971.

New England ran up a 31-10 margin and then held off a late Miami comeback. Larry Csonka scored two TDs for the Dolphins.

Redskins 13, Giants 10
Mike Bass returned an interception for one touchdown and then recovered a fumble to set up another in Washington's victory over the New York Giants.

49ers 17, Saints 13
New Orleans was leading 13-10 with less than two minutes to play but punter Donnie Gibbs fumbled a snap and was swarmed under by five San Francisco defenders, turning the ball over to the 49ers. On the next play, Sammy Johnson went nine yards for the winning touchdown.

Steelers 30, Colts 0
Pittsburgh fans were hooting quarterback Joe Gilliam during the first period when the Steelers' new signal caller managed only two completions for 12 yards.

But Gilliam erased the boos with two touchdown passes, gaining 257 yards through the air to lead Pittsburgh to its romp over Baltimore.

Cowboys 24, Falcons 0
Roger Staubach, returning to action from cracked ribs, passed for one touchdown and ran for another in Dallas' victory over Atlanta.

Rams 17, Broncos 10
Cullen Bryant returned a Denver kickoff 84 yards for a rally-killing touchdown that helped Los Angeles past the Broncos.

Oilers 21, Chargers 14 . . . Houston won its first opener since 1970 and its first home game since 1972, beating San Diego on three touchdowns by George Amundson. Amundson scored twice in the first period and then, after the Chargers had battled back to tie, he delivered the fourth-period game-winner on a three-yard plunge.

Vikings 32, Packers 17
Green Bay stayed with Minnesota for a while but turn-overs eventually caught up with the Packers. The Vikings forced Green Bay to cough up the football four times and scored after three of the turn-overs.

Chuck Foreman had three of the Minnesota touchdowns. Bengals 33, Browns 7 Cleveland was leading 7-0 with 18 seconds left in the first half when Kenny Anderson hit Isaac Curtis with a 49-yard pass that set up Boobie Clark's one-yard run for the tying TD. After that, it was all Cincinnati as the Bengals won their 14th straight home game. Anderson threw touchdown passes to Curtis and Bob Trumpy.

Bears 17, Lions 9
Gary Huff hit Charlie Wade with two long passes, one for 73 yards and another for 43, setting up Chicago touchdowns that beat Detroit.

Kansas Jayhawks size up Tennessee

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Four Big Eight Conference football teams seek victory No. 2 Saturday and the big test comes for Kansas at Tennessee under the lights.

A year ago, the Jayhawks rolled out front in their battle with Tennessee before finally losing 28-27. Even though his team lost that one, Kansas Coach Don Fambrough figured the Jayhawk's showing against the powerful Vols gave them the momentum for a 7-4-1 campaign.

Whether the Jayhawks, boasting an even more powerful defense than in 1973, can come that close against the Vols again or perhaps even beat them remains to be seen. Kansas demonstrated its fine defense Saturday night in a season-opening 14-7 triumph at Washington State.

Seventh-ranked Nebraska, lifting eyebrows with its 61-7 romp over Oregon, has a regionally televised game at Wisconsin. Oklahoma State, a 59-0 winner over Wichita State, tackles Arkansas at Little Rock at night. Kansas State, after whipping Tulsa 31-14 last week, is at home against Wichita State.

Top-ranked Oklahoma, victorious over Baylor 28-11 after a real struggle is idle.

The other three teams are on the rebound from opening defeats. Missouri, 18th ranked, begins its home campaign against Baylor after a disappointing 10-0 defeat by Mississippi.

Colorado, a 42-14 victim of Louisiana State, travels to Michigan, and Iowa State, trampled 24-3 by Texas Tech, goes to Washington.

The Jayhawks beat Washington State on a 31-yard run by fullback Robert Miller and quarterback Scott McMichael's one-yard scamper on the keeper. Both touchdowns were made in the second period.

Nebraska's David Humm connected on touchdown strikes of 34 and 36 yards, giving him a career total of 32 and tying the school record of Jerry Tagge. The game was so lopsided Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne sent 66 players into the contest by early in the third quarter. The Husker defense didn't allow a first down until the second period.

Freshman Terry Miller and junior college transfer Kenny Walker put on the big show for Oklahoma State. Miller made one TD and gained 128 yards on 12 tries. Walker scored on runs of 48 and 47 yards. George Palmer also tallied twice on one-yard spurts for the Cowboys.

K-State got a scare before beating the Hurricane, letting Tulsa pull up to within three points before Les Chaves picked up a blocked punt and ran 30 yards for a touchdown and Tom Winchell's reception of a three-yard pass from Steve Grogan for another wrapped up the game.

Oklahoma held only a 7-5 lead over Baylor after three periods but elusive Joe Washington started the Sooner fireworks in the last quarter.

Plagued by fumbles earlier, the Sooners put it all together in the last 15 minutes with a three-touchdown barrage on a nine-yard sprint by Washington, a one-yard run by quarterback Steve Davis and an 11-yard end around by Tinker Owens. Washington gained 156 yards on 17 thrusts.

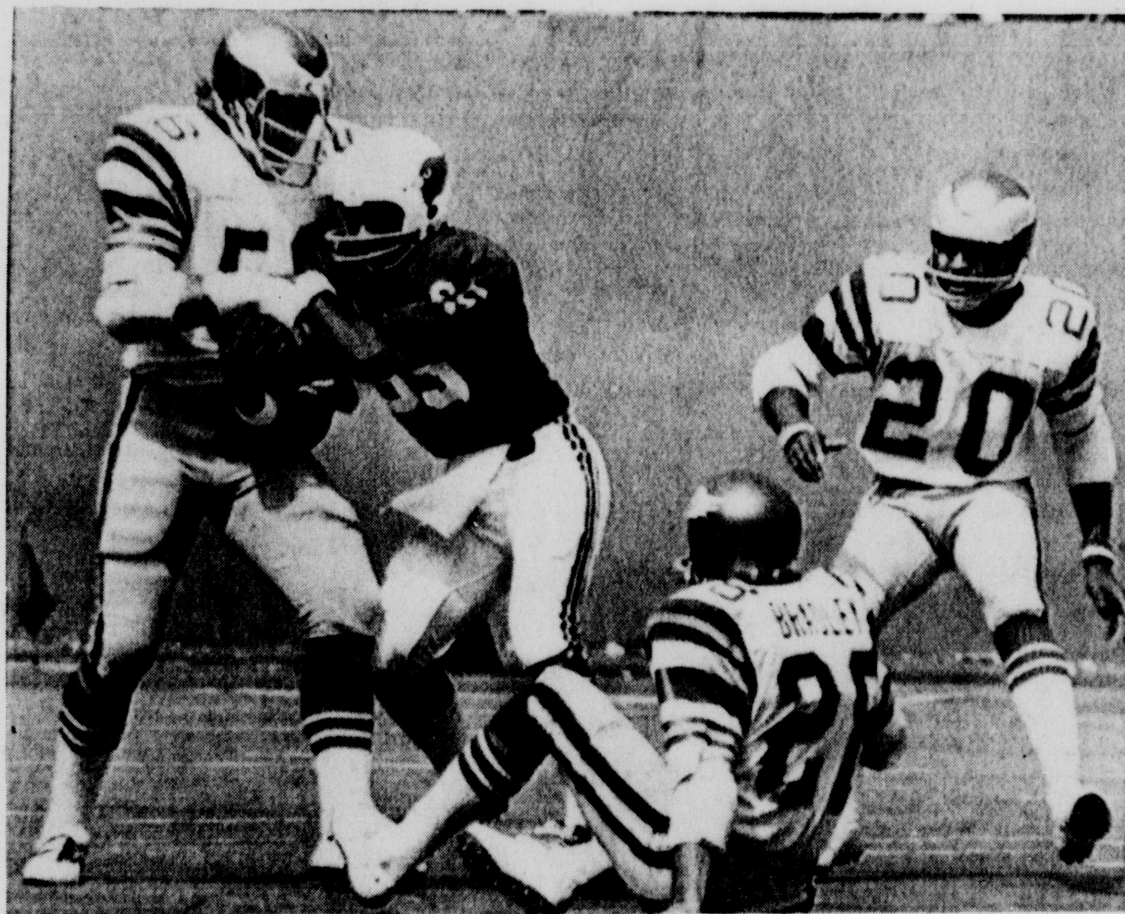

Missouri yielded to Mississippi when the Rebels marched 71 yards in 18 plays late in the third period and iced the struggle with a 21-yard field goal by Steve Lavinghouse. Missouri Coach Al Onofrio said inconsistency killed the Tigers.

LSU was much too much for the Buffaloes, who played their first game under new Coach Bill Mallory. The Buffs were hurt by fumbles and didn't score until the fourth quarter, making one touchdown on a blocked punt.

Iowa State, trailing 7-0 in the first quarter, came up with a 32-yard field goal by Tom Goedjen to pull up to 7-3 but faded thereafter.

This week's schedule:
Saturday—Iowa State at Washington; Wichita State at Kansas State; Colorado at Michigan; Nebraska at Wisconsin; Baylor at Missouri.

Saturday night—Oklahoma State vs. Arkansas at Little Rock; Kansas at Tennessee.

Cards' defense holds off Philadelphia, 7-3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals thought they'd seen the script before, but it had a different ending Sunday.

The National Football League club, beaten at the final gun by the Philadelphia Eagles in a 1973 meeting, turned the tables and held on to beat them 7-3.

"I don't know many times we've come down to the final minutes and wound up with nothing," remarked Cardinals quarterback Jim Hart, who threw a four-yard touchdown pass.

"It's good to do it to somebody else for a change," he noted. "We have to give all the credit today to the defense."

Penned up for three quarters, the favored Eagles set out as if to make final amends on a drive from their own 21 in the game's final two minutes.

And, with Roman Gabriel's passes and Po James' runs heading the attack, they glided quickly to a first down at the St. Louis 9.

There, however, a Gabriel pass sailed into the hands of wide receiver Harold Carmichael in the corner of the end zone only to be ruled out of bounds.

Gabriel on second down missed an aerial intended for Tom Sullivan and on third down was unable to hit Don Zimmerman beyond the goal.

On fourth down Gabriel again went to the 6-foot-8 Carmichael for what looked like the winning score, but cornerback Norm Thompson reached in to bat the ball away.

"Those passes drove me nuts," acknowledged Cardinals Coach Don Coryell, who had watched a final-second Gabriel peg to Zimmerman beat his team 27-24 last year.

"And we'd just missed a touchdown and a field goal," Coryell added. "Then they darn near drove all the way."

Manufacturing the Cardinal triumph was an 80-yard surge in the second quarter ignited by Hart after Tom Dempsey's early 44-yard field goal lifted the Eagles on to 3-0.

Hart whipped a 20-yard pass to fleet Mel Gray. Ken Willard twice ran for 11-yard gains and Donny Anderson hauled in a flat pass to cap an 80-yard drive.

Hart completed 13 of 27 passes for 192 yards. The Cardinal defense nullified Gabriel's 23-for-39 passing by sacking him five times.

"Any time you can keep an NFL team from scoring a touchdown it's something," Hart noted appreciatively. "But when it's against someone like Gabriel it's extra."

"The game ball goes to the defense as a whole," Coryell said.

America's Cup

Courageous, Southern Cross try once again

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The bumper stickers around the old Newport harbor are saying, "Go-Rageous."

That's a shorter way of urging American defender Courageous to put a quick end to the America's Cup yachting series. And quick means two more victories without a loss.

For that to come about, however, there will have to be better cooperation from the weather man.

It required five days to get in the first two races in the best-of-seven series, with Courageous winning both by impressive margins over the Australian challenger Southern Cross.

Fog and a lack of wind knocked out two days, and on Saturday the third race was abandoned when neither boat could complete the 24.3 mile offshore course in the re-

Foreman cut over eye; will seek postponement

N'SELE, Zaire (AP) — Heavyweight champion George Foreman was cut over the eye in training today and his manager, Dick Sadler, said, "We'll ask for a postponement" of his Sept. 25 title fight here against Muhammad Ali.

"I'm very disappointed," Foreman said after Sadler's statement. "It was a lot of hard work," he said.

The cut was above the champion's right eye and came during a sixth round of sparring against Bill McMurray. It was a horizontal gash about an inch long.

When Foreman talked to newsmen, only medication had been applied to the eye. The area under the eyebrow was swollen but the eye itself was open.

The injury came on either a punch or an elbow that slipped under Foreman's guard. Sadler said the blow came from the sparring partners elbow but McMurray called it a jab before deciding that it was an elbow blow.

McMurray later broke into tears when he was told that the fight was endangered.

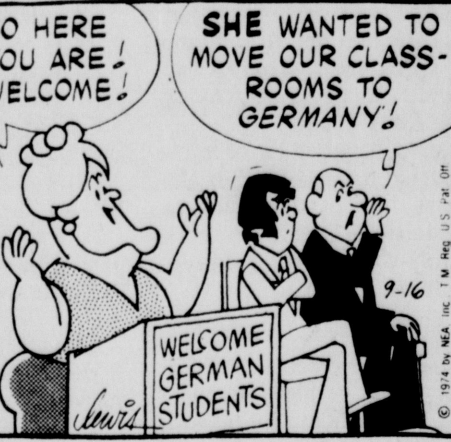

"These things have happened before and they will happen again," Sadler said. "They mostly happen in the gym and they will happen again."

MD's edge clergymen in brazen propositions

Dear Readers: I am back from China but my head is still in Peking. I awakened this morning, made myself a cup of tea and started to do my own laundry.

But now I must address myself to the enormous mountain of mail that has accumulated in my absence. And the first business at hand is to let you know the results of the poll: Question — "Who make the most passes — doctors, lawyers or clergymen?"

It all started when I printed a letter from a woman who said she had read several letters in my column over the past years from women who claimed their doctors tried to get intimate. The writer declared, "I never had trouble with a doctor, but the lawyer who handled my divorce case propositioned me and I was so eager to get out of a lousy marriage, I agreed to 'cooperate' — right in his office, on the leather couch." She signed herself "Dumb Dora."

I told Dora: "Poor judgment and weak character don't belong exclusively to any single profession — there are bound to be a few rotten apples in every barrel," etc.

I was promptly inundated with blasts and bouquets for both lawyers and doctors, but I was astonished by the number of women who wrote to say they never had any trouble with either and that the one to keep an eye on was the clergyman.

When I printed that letter, several readers suggested I take a poll. So I asked for one-word postcards in response to the question: "Have you ever had a pass from a doctor, a lawyer or a clergyman? If so, which one?"

The results were staggering. It was a dead heat between the doctors and the clergymen, with the doctors edging out the clergymen by a small margin.

I was surprised to learn that dentists beat out lawyers by approximately 50 votes. (Many specified DIVORCE lawyer.)

Here are some responses I found interesting:

From Atlanta: "Bosses are the worst. No doctor, lawyer, or clergymen ever got out of line with me but I had to quit three jobs because of lecherous bosses."

From New Orleans: "College professors lead the pack. I'm ashamed to say I gave in to two of them. It was that or flunk."

From Chicago: "You are a female chauvinist sow. I am a male who has been propositioned by four girls who work in this office and I'm not even the big enchilada. I'm only the office manager. When are you going to accept the fact that women are as aggressive, sexually, as men?"

Canton, Ohio: "I am 75 years old and have been propositioned ten times: two physicians, two bosses, one national evangelist, three traveling salesmen, one plumber and the mortician who buried my husband."

Memphis: "The most brazen proposition I ever received came from an estimator for a termite control company. Sign me — Bugged in Tennessee."

I received hundreds of cards from women who expressed this sentiment (this one is from Davenport, Iowa): "I am 44 years old, a former beauty queen, and have been considered good-looking and well-stacked all my life. I've had seven marriage proposals (accepted a Navy officer 21 years ago) but never a single proposition. Why? Because I've always conducted myself like a lady. Whenever I saw a pass coming, I knew how to head it off in a humorous, but emphatic manner. I never lost my cool and I never lost a friend."

Lucie Arnaz displays her authentic talent

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The audience at the Ahmanson Theater premiere of "Seesaw" stood and cheered as the tall, dark-haired beauty stood alone on the empty stage.

This was Lucie Arnaz accepting the ovation of a hometown crowd that had been astonished by her display of talent in the musical play.

She sang in a manner that has reminded critics of a young Ethel Merman. She danced with surprising agility. Most of all, she portrayed the tough vulnerability of Gittel Mosca with touching truthfulness.

She sounded more like a tender Barbra Streisand than the daughter of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz.

Lucie's parents were both in the first night audience. They were as overwhelmed as the rest of the audience. The 23-year-old Lucie said it was "the greatest night of my life. If I never have another night like it, I wouldn't care. I'd still be happy."

After the excitement of the opening night, Lucie Arnaz relaxed one afternoon over an iced tea and talked about her young life and career. She is an easy talker, without the pretense of young performers who are overwhelmed by their success.

Many persons in the "Seesaw" audience were doubting Thomases expecting to see a second-generation performer cashing in on her parents' fame. Her display of authentic talent helped spark the spontaneous ovation. How did she manage such a polished performance?

"Well, I've been learning," Lucie remarked. "I've spent a number of years making mistakes and asking questions so I can correct them."

"Lessons? Well, I'm not a good lesson taker. I always did poorly, whether it was piano, skiing, tennis, or whatever Mother wanted me to take."

"I don't like that kind of regimentation; I like to make my plans on the spur of the moment."

"I learned dancing by doing it. In six years on the 'Lucy' show, I had a lot of good coaching from directors like Jack Baker and Jack Donahue."

"The singing came easily: I never really studied it, and I didn't get help from my parents."

"My father had a really fine voice, although he hasn't used it in the past few years. Mother always hated to sing and claimed she had no voice."

"Comedy, of course, was something I learned as a child. Mother always taught believability. She told me that you could make your comedy as wild as you want — as long as you set it up to be believable."

"But if you try some tricks just to get laughs, it won't work."

'Stop the Killing' initiated

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The message delivered from pulpits at more than 100 predominantly black churches in the inner city here Sunday was "Stop the Killing."

The program, initiated by 16 black ministers under the aegis of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), is concerned with the growing crime rate in the ghetto.

The Rev. Emmanuel Cleaver, SCLC president here and pastor of the St. James Gregory United Methodist Church, said one of the first phases of the effort will be a 24-hour "secret hot line," where community members may deposit information about illegal acts without divulging their names.

A goal of $10,000 was established by the ministers last month for the telephone service. The Rev. Mr. Cleaver estimated about half the goal has been raised.

The telephone system was arranged following meetings involving the ministers and law enforcement officials.

"People in the black community are fearful of reprisals," the Rev. Mr. Cleaver said. "And under the present system of releasing those accused of crimes on bond and the rate at which those persons are released, there is a danger that those who report crimes would be subject to harassment."

"But we understand at the start that we are accepting the responsibility of communicating leads to the police. With those leads, the police should be able to get the substantial evidence to insure conviction."

Maritime funds go to shipping bill supporters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The maritime unions still have $886,000 for political donations, after pouring one-third of a million dollars into campaigns of congressmen who supported them on a hotly disputed shipping bill.

Business mirror

Stock market advisers gun shy

By DOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined so fast this past month that those who write the market advisory letters for the brokerage firms are shying away from the numbers.

Too many of them, it seems, have had the disheartening experience of forecasting a support level in, say, the 700-point area of the Dow Jones industrial average, only to have that level punctured before their customers received the mail.

In a little over one month the industrial average has fallen nearly 170 points to a 627.19 reading, the lowest in 12 years.

"All of us, of course, are shell-shocked after what has happened in the past two months," writes one analyst.

Nobody dares forecast a bottoming out. So much has gone awry in the stock market that almost everyone is certain there's more to come. And this isn't just a hunch; the economic statistics support the gloom.

Price increases, for instance, seem to be accelerating, and that means bad news for stocks. Inflation and high interest rates are known to be among the market's major enemies.

Another depressant is declining industrial activity.

As the bear market worsens, incalculable damage is being done to the structure of the market place, which probably will make it all the more difficult to recover.

Thousands of brokers have been laid off, and most of them aren't likely to return. Having adjusted to incomes above $50,000 during the glory days of the mid-1960s, few of them could adjust to $12,000 a year — and then a layoff.

Hundreds of brokerage houses have gone out of business. Even some of the biggest that remain face financial difficulties.

Their customers have disappeared into the bond markets, where interest rates are high.

Whereas it cost $515,000 to own a seat on the New York Stock Exchange early in 1969, anyone with the qualifications can pick one up for $65,000 these days.

Even if activity resumed, it

Latest campaign finance reports show the unions have given $333,300 to 141 congressmen who supported the bill. The measure would require that eventually 30 per cent of all U.S. oil imports be shipped in American-flag ships, manned by union crews.

The unions still have some of the richest political trusts in the nation, the reports show.

Federal law sets no limit on political donations by union groups, so long as the funds come from voluntary contributions of members. Direct donations from a union treasury to political campaigns are illegal.

Most of the money, $595,000, is held by three trusts run by the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association. Other rich trusts are run by the Seafarers International Union and the Masters, Mates and Pilots, and other maritime unions.

The reports show the union money given to incumbents since Jan. 1 has gone almost exclusively to those who voted for the bill or supported it in some way. Maritime donations went to only three congressmen and one senator who voted against the bill.

The senator, Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., gave $8,500 back to the marine engineers union two days before the Senate vote on Sept. 5. A spokesman declined comment when asked if Javits had feared the money would create a conflict of interest.

The largest donation by the unions went to Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., who denied that the $20,000 received by him created any conflict. Long is chairman of the Merchant Marine subcommittee, and as floor manager of the bill he guided it to passage.

The second-largest donation went to Long's counterpart in the House, Rep. Frank M. Clark, D-Pa., chairman of the Merchant Marine subcommittee which cleared the bill before the House approved it last May. Clark got $17,500.

The third-largest sum went to House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass. He received $16,000.

The maritime unions seemed to put their donations where they would do the most good. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Commerce Committee and one of the bill's sponsors, got $12,900, some of it around the time the committee was holding hearings on the measure.

Another sponsor, Sen. Bob Packwood, D-Ore., got $10,000.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, a vocal supporter of the bill, received $12,800. He also received a $25,000 loan, not yet repaid.

Other big donations went to Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., $14,500; Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, defeated for renomination, $13,000; Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, $10,000; Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., $7,500, and Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., $7,200.

Woman arrested in death of husband

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Virginia Robinson, 47, has been arrested in connection with the shooting death of her former husband, police said.

Authorities said Lloyd Harris, 49, died of a gunshot wound in the neck suffered Saturday night as he stood outside the back door of the Robinson home. One shot had been fired through the door, police said.

Mrs. Robinson, a police clerk, was arrested Sunday.

ABC show premiere parallels one on NBC

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC, once highly regarded by violence fans for the gore and gunsmoke of its shows, has joined TV's new craze for warm, virtuous families. I have reference to ABC's "The New Land" series.

The show is about a sturdy Scandinavian clan which, seeing no fjord in its future, settles on the Minnesota prairie in 1858. The clan is well ahead of NBC's "Little House on the Prairie" mob; that crew got on TV first, but didn't move to rural Minnesota until 1878.

Despite the age difference, "The New Land," which premiered last Saturday night, apparently shares not only the land but also the same ox miseries as the family on the NBC show.

Those who saw the "Little House" opening will recall that Charles Ingalls almost lost his yoke of oxen to a hard-hearted merchant. "The New Land" took the yoke one step further.

Lightning struck the barn of settlers Christian and Anna Larsen, set it ablaze and in no time at all the barn and the two oxen within were burnt down.

This was bad news for Christian, who needed the oxen to haul lumber to a freight company with which he had a contract. A proud man, he rejected a charity offer of new oxen from a neighbor, Johanson.

Then he met a Mormon family possessed of more oxen than it needed. He made a deal to give the Mormons a piece of land in exchange for the animals. Then Johanson told a town meeting of Scandinavians the Mormons would have to leave, as they were of the wrong heritage and would ruin the neighborhood. But it all ended happily.

Ja, Ja, diss vass as bad as it sounded and ja, ve are vitholding de names of cast members to protect de innocent. And dey all are.

Demonstration by students broken up

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Troops and police armed with machine guns, bayonets and a water cannon today broke up a demonstration by more than 1,000 students calling for civilian rule in Ethiopia within six months. No injuries were reported.

It was the first open sign of civilian discontent against the five-day-old military government that deposed Emperor Haile Selassie last Thursday.

Only last week students hailed the military as national saviors for arresting feudal aristocrats considered corrupt and oppressive.

Police entered the campus of Haile Selassie University and dispersed students into the streets with a water cannon.

A dozen jeeps carrying machine guns blocked an attempted student march toward downtown Addis Ababa. Helmeted soldiers with fixed bayonets sealed off the campus.

"We are not against the military as such but we are against the military government," a student leader said. "The military are harsh. They are cruel. "We are afraid their government will become permanent and we do not want to exchange one dictator for another."

The 13-man ruling Armed Forces Committee has promised eventual elections for a civilian government. But a committee statement Sunday night apparently ruled out an early return to the barracks. It said the committee will not abandon Ethiopia "to power-hungry civilians or military."

Many students and teachers want the emperor tried for treason and forced to return billions of dollars he allegedly deposited illegally in other countries.

Rumors spread today that the military was planning to exile him and that two countries — Britain and the West African state of Cameroon — had been approached.

The emperor was being held in a residence within the 4th Infantry Division compound in Addis Ababa, reliable Ethiopian sources said.

Youth injured by rock dropped from overpass

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A 17-year-old suburban Lake Lotawana youth remained in critical condition today, the unwitting victim of a heavy rock dropped from an interstate highway overpass.

LaMonte Patras, a high school senior, was asleep in the front passenger seat in Sunday's predawn hours as his father drove south on Interstate 435 north of Downtown Kansas City.

Police said a rock weighing about 18 pounds was dropped about 25 feet onto the car from an overpass, smashing through the windshield and striking the sleeping Patras in the chest.

The impact was so great it knocked Patras and the bucket seat where he sat into the back seat.

Police arrested three youths in the course of a house-to-house search through a subdivision in the area early Sunday and released two of them.

The boy held in custody is 15, police said.

William Patras, the victim's father, was not injured.

The elder Patras said that when the missile smashed through the windshield, he thought something had shot from the engine.

"But as I opened the hood I looked up at the bridge," he said. "That's when I knew that nothing was wrong with my car."

He said he saw "several figures" on the overpass.

A police spokesman said a witness was located who had seen several juveniles on the overpass before 4 a.m., when the accident occurred.

"We don't know why he was out at that time of the morning," an officer said about the youth who was held. "All we have been able to establish is that he just didn't have anything else to do."

People in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Newsweek magazine has hired former White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers to write a monthly column.

Moyers, who served as press secretary to President Lyndon B. Johnson, will begin appearing in Newsweek starting in the Sept. 23 edition, said Newsweek editor Osborn Elliott.

Moyers served as publisher of Newsday, the Long Island daily, from 1967 until 1970. He most recently was host of "Bill Moyers' Journal," an Emmy award-winning series for the Public Broadcasting Service.

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — A 5-foot-8 brunette from Daytona Beach, Fla., Terry Ann Browning, is the new Miss World-USA.

Miss Browning, 20, was selected from 49 young women to represent the United States in the Miss World pageant in London in November.

She was crowned in ceremonies Sunday by comedian Marty Allen.

Kimberly Louise Tones, a 19-year-old Texan, was first runner-up. Other runners-up were Marilyn Ann Petty, 23, representing Michigan; Sherry Love, 22, of Arizona; and Constance Marie Rauback, 18, of Pennsylvania.

NEW YORK (AP) — French aerialist Philippe Petit has left for Paris but he says he will return Oct. 10 to join the Ringling Brothers Circus.

The 25-year-old high wire artist, who gained nationwide attention when he walked across a wire between the two towers of the World Trade Center, boarded a plane for Paris on Sunday night.

Petit said he will do a juggling act atop a high wire without the aid of a balancing pole when he joins the American circus.

He also said he hasn't given up his plan to walk a wire over Niagara Falls. But he said, "This will take almost two years of planning."

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Heart rates often vary

Dear Dr. Lamb — Your column about coffee and your heart was rather disturbing to me. You said that people with resting heart rates over 80 beats per minute were more likely to have a heart attack or drop dead than people with resting heart rates below 70. My doctor, who is quite renowned, told me that a normal heart rate for women was between 78 and 84 — somewhat higher than for men. I had always thought that around 80 was normal. I have had a faster heart rate than usual these past few years. A number of years ago I had attacks of rapid heart beats and took quinine, but I'm not troubled with that any more.

I have given up coffee and only have a half cup of Sanka in the mornings and rarely drink tea. Alcohol seems to speed up my heart at times, and I thought it was a depressant. I drink very little, however. I'm 63 and female and have been very active. I would appreciate further information about the heart rates.

Dear Reader — Yes, I did say that. It is the result of a study of personnel from the People's Gas Company. When doctors talk about likelihood in groups, you cannot then say it will happen to one particular person. It is just a statement of risk factor.

Normal heart rates are said to be between 60 and 100 beats per minute. The problem is the definition of normal. It is used to define the common finding. If you measured the resting heart rate you would find it between 60 and 100 in most people.

Normal, meaning "common," isn't too helpful in evaluating health. In a population where over half of the people die from heart and vascular disease, being normal can be downright dangerous. What you want are optimal findings — meaning the kind of measurements you see in the people with the least amount of illness or the lowest death rate. Thus, it is proper to say a resting heart rate below 70 is more of an optimal value than a rate above 80. However, both values are normal.

When a person has a higher heart rate it really serves as a warning to the doctor to look for the cause. If it is cigarettes the patient should quit. He should quit anyway. If it is because he is out of shape and overweight, he needs a fitness program. If it is from living with a cup of coffee always in his hand, he should stop that. In some cases it is simple anxiety, and the doctor may want to reassure him or find out what is causing the anxiety.

A "resting" heart rate should be one taken early in the morning before the person starts doing a lot of physical activity or gets involved in life's situations. Or, it can be later in the day, but then it will be influenced by what has been going on. Many men sitting at their desk in the afternoon will have a heart rate over 100. The office coffee, cigarettes, lack of physical fitness and stress all contribute to the finding. It is probably this individual with these unhealthy habits who is most likely to drop dead or have a heart attack. So, a "high normal" heart rate is a symptom. If it is caused by unhealthy habits the thing to do is correct the habits. (NEA)

Democrats cashing in on Ford's pardon of Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats are starting to inject President's Ford's pardon of Richard M. Nixon into the mid-term campaign at the same time a survey shows them headed for a strong showing in November.

Underscoring Republican fears that Ford's action may revive Watergate-related issues at the GOP's expense, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Hugh L. Carey in New York and Senate hopeful Jonathan Marshall in Arizona have questioned the pardon.

And in California, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., launched a weekend of campaigning for Democratic candidates by blasting Ford. "It was the wrong time, the wrong place and the wrong person to receive a pre-indictment, preconviction pardon," he said.

Their moves came as an Associated Press survey showed that Republicans appear headed for substantial losses this November. Despite some revived morale since Ford assumed the presidency, the GOP could lose two to six Senate seats and governorships, and possibly up to 40 House seats.

Inflated natural gas bills alleged by GAO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of customers have been charged inflated bills for natural gas because the Federal Power Commission improperly allowed producers to sell gas at unregulated prices, according to the General Accounting Office.

Concluding a 10-month investigation, the GAO also charged that 55 officials of the commission failed to comply with rules designed to prevent conflict of interest.

Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., who requested the investigation, called the GAO report "one of the most powerful indictments of a federal regulatory agency within memory."

"Most, if not all, of the nation's 40 million gas bills have been seriously and adversely affected by the irregularities revealed by GAO and shown to be commonplace at the FPC," Moss said.

He called for congressional hearings and a Justice Department investigation and urged that all pending natural gas price increases be delayed.

Nineteen of the 125 officials of the commission were reported to own stock in companies regulated by the FPC, and subsequently have been ordered to sell their securities.

They were not identified by name, but only as seven administrative judges, two attorneys, three engineers, three officials in the bureau of power, two officials in the office of the comptroller and two officials in the office of economics.

The report also said there "has been widespread noncompliance by FPC officials with the agency's standards of conduct regulations," and only 61 of the officials made proper disclosures when they were hired.

FPC Chairman John N. Naisikas said in a statement released with the GAO report on Saturday that the commission had the right to waive certain requirements in emergency situations.

by Democrats — 20 of 34 Senate seats, 23 of 35 governorships — few Democratic incumbents are rated in serious difficulty.

Carey, who won an uphill primary battle last week, seems likely to give a stern test to Wilson, who became governor when Nelson A. Rockefeller resigned last December. Democrats consider their chances better than in any year since Rockefeller was first elected in 1958.

In California, where Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan is retiring, the Democrats also are mounting a strong bid.

Polls show their candidate, Secretary of State Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown Jr., son of Reagan's predecessor, leading Republican Houston I. Flournoy.

Democratic triumphs in California and New York could give the Democrats control of the nation's six largest states going into the 1976 presidential election.

Democratic Govs. John J. Gilligan of Ohio, Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania and Dolph Briscoe of Texas are considered leading in re-election bids, while Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker of Illinois is midway through his four-year term.

Democrats also hope to capture Republican-held governorships in Connecticut, Massachusetts, Arizona and Oregon. The only incumbent Republican governor running is Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts.

The best GOP hopes to gain governorships held by Democrats appear to be in Maine, New Mexico and Oklahoma. None has an incumbent running.

The Republican problem in the Senate races is shown by the survey's finding that 13 Democrats are considered virtually certain winners, including non-incumbents John H. Glenn Jr. in Ohio and Dale Bumpers in Arkansas. With 38 holdovers, that would give the Democrats the Senate majority of 51.

Family has 107-room house

BRESE, III. (AP) — Charles Walter has to carry 10 keys to his home. "Those are the vital ones that we use," he said. "I'd say there are 10 or 15 pounds more of them that we don't use."

Walter, 34, his wife, Loretta, and their seven children share a 107-room, 20-bath home complete with elevator, dumbwaiter, two acres of lawn, 500 feet of hedges, a laundry house, a tunnel, a kitchen big enough to feed more than 100 persons, parking for 20 and a delivery room, which is occupied by Mrs. Walter's mother.

Their home used to be a hospital.

Until last year they lived in a house, ran a ceramics business from it and felt cramped. One day they were out driving and "happened to glance by this way as we were looking for a bigger place."

A new hospital had been built and Breese was about to demolish the old one, built in 1884. A for sale sign hung out front and the Walters bought it for $60,000.

Mrs. Walter said that for the price they couldn't have gotten a much smaller house, let alone 107 rooms. "Who could build a 20-room house for that?" she asked. "With an elevator?" her husband added.

"We use every room in the building, one way or another," Walter said. His basement is jammed with ceramics equipment. The first floor is a shop with a one-time operating room used as a classroom for hobbyists. The family lives on the second floor and the third is for grandma, house guests and storage.

There can be problems in learning to live in a 107-room house. All the doors on the halls look alike. Finding switches for hall lights, or a fuse box, can be a challenge.

Alexander, their 3-year-old, still gets lost. "We spend our time yelling, 'Where are you?'" his mother said. They installed an intercom but found yelling through the laundry chute serves as well.

Heating the home is a chore. "It's all steam heated, coal stoked and one helluva job to keep up with," said Walter, who does all the maintenance work. On cold days it consumes a ton of coal that costs $27 and has to be shoveled by hand.

In a small town people wonder about a family living in a hospital, especially one that most of them have been patients in.

The Walters had an open house. It was a smashing success. Said Mrs. Walter: "An old man told me it was the first time he'd got out the front door without paying."

Lovers lane slaying is probed

HILLSBORO, Mo. (AP)—A combined police effort by officers from Jefferson and St. Louis counties was to continue today in a search for clues in the apparent lovers lane slaying of a young couple Sunday.

Jefferson County authorities yesterday called in the major case squad from St. Louis County to investigate the stabbing and shooting deaths of Donna Lakebrink, 18, and Robert Langsdorf, 21, both of south St. Louis County, whose bodies were found near their blood-spattered car on a deserted road near Fenton.

Police said Langsdorf had apparently been shot outside the car and dragged to the side of the road. His hands were tied behind him with an electrical cord, authorities said.

The partially clothed body of Miss Lakebrink, her throat slashed, was found about 50 yards from the car, police said.

Authorities said a passerby saw the car and reported to police that there must have been an accident. He led police to the scene and the bodies were discovered.

Late Sunday night police said no arrests had been made in the case, but that several leads were being pursued.

Former director under Hearnies dies

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Ruby Jane Happy, 60, Jefferson City, former director of the Missouri Department of Business and Administration under former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, died at a hospital here Saturday.

Mrs. Happy was a former president and secretary of the Missouri Federation of the Women's Democratic Club.
